Wood Fire Cooking is an Art

Good cooking references are hard to come by, Wittus has one we think you might like. Culinary historian Paula Marcoux (shown below) has devoted a lifetime to cooking on a wood fire. Her book "Cooking With Fire" is a literal testimonial of her expertise in this area and covers subjects like: direct-grilling over live fire, roasting on spits, smoking with pine needles and nestling thick-skinned vegetables directly in the embers. The ideal Wittus products to use to perfect this craft are the Phoenix and Firebird grills. Other cook stoves from Wittus include the de Manincor, Lugo (above right) and Klassic cook stoves, and the Faltovn camp stove.

Twinfire, Green and Clean

The Twinfire has double the fire, double the action and is designed with the environment in mind. The unique firebox was originally created by two German Engineers as an efficient heating method and pollution reducer for use in third world countries. Available in five models: Solo (shown), Basic, Classic, Elegance, and Pur. EPA certified and approved to UL/ULC standards and burning at 93% efficiency, this stove is like no other. No doubt about it, the Twinfire is an efficient, environment friendly green alternative.
